

Manon Gantenbein

Heading the Clinical and Epidemiological Investigation Center (CIEC) and the Clinical Project Management Office (CPMO) at the Luxembourg Institute of Health. The CIEC is a nationwide clinical research unit, promoting clinical research in Luxembourg and supporting local projects initiated by researchers and principal investigators.

She holds a PhD in Pharmacology, and coordinated, in previous positions in a major pharmaceutical company and Clinical Research Organization, several multicentre registration trials in Multiple Sclerosis among others as well as Early Development phase I studies in Parkinson Disease and joined the CIEC in 2009 as a Coordinator.

Manon contributed to the development of the unit by interacting with local health care professionals, researchers and scientists and provided operational expertise to the set-up of numerous clinical research projects in various fields (oncology, infectious diseases including covid 19, pneumology, nutrition, ...). S he has a sound knowledge of clinical research with past working experience in France, Germany and Luxembourg. For the past years Manon was able to contribute consistently to the set-up of national cohorts, clinical research projects initiated by national /international investigators. Manon is further currently contributing to a specific workgroup on research within the National Cancer Plan.